

Ten Ways You Can ADVOCATE FOR GIRLS:

DO YOUR HOMEWORK! Learn as much as you can about the issue or problem. It's hard to know everything about an issue. Don't let a concern that you haven't got all of the history and details stop you from advocating for the principles and issues you see.

1. Collect stories from young women and their parents on the successes they have experienced in being part of your program or a program you know and send them to your legislators (send a copy to the Coalition for us to use in our statewide advocacy).
2. Provide the support and opportunity for girls to use their voices (tell their stories, tell decision-makers what has worked for them, share their concerns and say what they need) with legislators.

SPEAK! It isn't advocacy if you don't tell someone. Don't be intimidated about communicating with a public official.

3. Invite the senator, representative, and candidates from your district to visit your girl's program (s). Best done during the interim when Legislators are home in their districts.
4. Write a letter to or email your senator and representative introducing yourself and sharing the issues and needs important to young women during the Legislative Session. You can find the names and contact information of your senator and representatives by going to www.leg.state.or.us and clicking on "Find Your Legislator."
5. During the Legislative Sessions, you can also call your legislators and/or the leadership in the Legislature about the specific issue requiring immediate response. Visit links listed above to find the names and contact information of your senator and representatives.
6. Voice your opinion and/or support young women in raising their voices in public meetings (i.e. local school boards or board of county commissioners meetings, city commissions) or in newspapers about specific issues relating to and affecting girls.
7. Vote! Get all of your family, friends and colleagues to use their voices by voting as well.

ACTION! Ask the public official to DO something!

8. Be a voice for girls by advocating with all state departments serving youth to comply with implementation of the Equal Access Law (ORS 417.270) and gender-specific services policies.
9. Learn about the Coalition's advocacy and share it with everyone that you think needs to know the specific issues of girls at-risk or who could use this message in their advocacy for girls. (To get this information go to our website www.equalaccessforgirls.org or email the Coalition President at pam@equalaccessforgirls.org)
10. Get your email address on the Coalition's List (by emailing it to: pam@equalaccessforgirls.org) so that when specific issues come up around girls during the legislative session or the interim we can send the information to you immediately.
